CHILDREN

They are the reason we try so hard. They are the reason we don't take no for an answer. They hold the future of our nation in their hands. If we treat them right, if we prepare them, if we make them healthy and strong, our country, our communities and our families will be secure.

If we don't, if we ignore their plight, if we protect just the well-off and privileged, all our other accomplishments will count for little, for our future will have been squandered.
