

Réseau des villes francophones
et francophiles d'Amérique

Three leading Francophone cities in North America – Québec City, Québec; Lafayette, Louisiana, and Moncton, New Brunswick – are coming together to create a network to celebrate their shared history and heritage.

The network's purpose is to promote communities that are historically, culturally, and linguistically affiliated with French Canadian culture and showcase their tourist attractions. It requires no investment from member municipalities other than providing information.

The Network will allow participating municipalities to:

- Support the vitality of Francophone and Francophile communities while preserving their common heritage
- Promote their tourist attractions
- Develop a tourist circuit via an Internet portal showcasing the communities for millions of

- potential visitors
- Support their economic development and tourism industry

Inaugural Event: October 29–31, 2015 (SOLD OUT)

Invitation by the Mayor of Québec City to the Inaugural Event

The Inaugural Event of the Francophone and Francophile Cities Network will be held October 29–31 in Québec City. The event will welcome mayors, municipal officials, private- and public-sector organizations, and representatives of community groups from North American francophone and francophile cities.

Organized by Ville de Québec and Centre de la francophonie des Amériques, this international gathering will feature conferences, economic development workshops, round tables, and cultural activities. Several renowned experts will be in attendance.

The goal of the meeting is to highlight best practices and provide tools and strategies for raising the profile of Francophone communities with ties to French culture and heritage.
