I do not think lowering the speed limit on Wellington Crescent year round to 30km/hr is a good idea without studying the negative impact on traffic which diverts to other side streets including an already overburdened Grosvenor and Academy road. Given our budget situation, a much simpler solution would be to allow bikes to use the north sidewalk along the riverside park and pedestrians could use the south sidewalk on the busy section of Wellington Crescent between Stradbrook and Academy road. Very few bike use the existing bike lanes in the winter and I don't see any plows removing snow from these lanes.
