EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Patio music, when it is determined to be a nuisance, is regulated through the City of Winnipeg's Neighbourhood Liveability By-law under Part 5 – Noise; and if those patios are licensed, The Liquor and Gaming Control Act of Manitoba.

Three options have been outlined to address music coming from patios. The first provides clarity on existing legislation and the means to leverage existing processes to effectively address citizen concerns. Second and third options provide possible amendments to City by-laws and approval processes to restrict when music would be allowed on outdoor patios.

The Public Service is recommending no changes be made to City by-laws and approval processes as the existing legislation provides effective tools to respond to citizen complaints on a situation by situation basis. Amending City by-laws may have a negative effect on compliant businesses and does not provide an effective deterrent to non-compliant operators. However, scripting will be provided to 311 operators so that concerns with excessive noise on licensed patios can also be referred to The Liquor and Gaming Authority of Manitoba.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. That this report be received as information.

REASON FOR THE REPORT

The Standing Policy Committee on Protection, Community Services and Parks concurred in the Council Motion dated October 25, 2017, as amended, and recommended to Council that the Winnipeg Public Service be directed to review and report back within 120 days on the following:

1. Amendments to Part 5 of the Neighbourhood Liveability By-law No. 1/2008, to include specific restrictions for outdoor patio music emanating from outdoor patios at restaurants, drinking establishments, micro-brewery, distillery or winery, or any commercial enterprises, between the hours of 11:00 p.m. and 8:00 a.m.

2. Measures to enforce compliance and ensure that establishments follow the regulation with minimal impact on surrounding neighbourhoods.
3. Consultation with the Liquor and Gaming Authority of Manitoba.
4. That the Proper Officers of the City be authorized to do all things necessary to implement the intent of the foregoing.

IMPLICATIONS OF THE RECOMMENDATIONS

There are no implications of the recommendation as it is to receive the report as information.

HISTORY/DISCUSSION

Discussion

Current legislation:

Patio music, when it is determined to be a nuisance, is regulated through both the City of Winnipeg's Neighbourhood Liveability By-law (the "NLB") under Part 5 – Noise; and The Liquor and Gaming Control Act of Manitoba (the "Act") (if those patios are licensed). Relevant sections have been reproduced in Appendix "A" to this report.

Under the NLB, broadly speaking, noise is regulated in two ways. The first is prohibiting certain activities (mechanical, construction, air moving equipment) at specified times, outlining actual noise levels that are allowed measured by sound pressure levels in decibels. The second is through regulating noise that is a nuisance. This latter item would apply to all types of noise (people generated) in all types of environments and situations.

Enforcement of nuisance noise under the by-law is generally enforced by the Winnipeg Police Service (WPS), although both police and Community By-law Enforcement Services ("CBES") officers have authority to enforce.

Patio music is subject to section 67 of the NLB. Loud patio music could be considered as nuisance noise. In this regard, there are a number of factors to consider under enforcement, including:

1. If the noise is "unreasonably loud, unnecessary or excessive";
2. If the noise unreasonably disturbs an individual of "ordinary sensitivity";
3. The time of day, and day of the week;
4. The nature and use of the area in which the noise emanates and the nature and use of the area at which it is received;
5. The nature of the event or activity; and
6. The volume, duration and nature of the sound.

When by-law officers or police attend they must consider all six factors as well as zoning and land use considerations.

In all circumstances police or by-law officers must determine if a breach of the NLB has occurred for enforcement action to be taken (issuance of tickets).

Similarly, through the Act, the Liquor and Gaming Authority (LGA) has the authority to enforce any conditions it may have established at the time of issuing the liquor license for nuisance patio music.

The Act provides the LGA with broad level regulatory authority to address nuisance music on licensed patios. The Act empowers the Executive Director to "…impose, rescind or vary a term or condition on a licence at any time after a licence has been issued." Non-compliance with sections of the Act or its regulations can be enforced through ticketing under the Provincial Offences Act (POA), or through an administrative process which includes fines, suspensions, revocation of license, and/or conditions imposed on a license.

There is further authority within the LGA licensing and enforcement process to restrict music on a licensee by licensee basis. Page 14 of the LGA's Liquor Licensee Policy Manual (dated June 16, 2017) states:

3.3.5. If the LGA receives noise complaints once the patio is approved, approval may be withdrawn or additional conditions such as restricted service or vacating hours may be imposed to prevent noise nuisance to nearby residents and the public.

Existing Enforcement Options:

Enforcement under NLB is through the issuance of tickets, which carry a fine ranging from $200-$400 per offence. NLB enforcement is through CBES officers or Police Officers.

Enforcement of the Act and its regulations include administrative warnings, fines, suspensions, imposing conditions, cancellation of licenses, and tickets. Enforcement of the Act is through Liquor and Gaming Inspectors or Police Officers. The disposition options for police are generally more limited to ticketing.

The Act provides the LGA with the authority to license a premise for the sale and service of liquor. In this regard a licensing regime authorizes the regulator to impose an escalating series of consequences, leading up to suspension or even potential revocation of a license.

Ticketing of noise violations under the NLB can now be processed through the Municipal By-law Enforcement Act (the "MBEA"). The process under the MBEA allows for more expedient dispositions of tickets than the previous process under The Summary Conviction Act.

The processes governing administrative actions to address breaches of a licensing operation are not as rigorous as the processes around rules of evidence or procedure for common offence notices under POA or MBEA.

Below is a summary of the enforcement authority and various agencies involved in regulating nuisance noise (nuisance patio music):

Opportunities to address loud music:

Option 1 – Status quo - Leverage the existing legislation to respond to citizen concerns.

Currently the NLB and the Act address noise nuisances. The LGA is specifically more effective in addressing loud music emanating from licensed patios when that operation is impacting the surrounding community.

Analysis:

Ticketing of noise violations under the NLB can now be processed through the MBEA. However, fee amounts in and of themselves may not be sufficient to change the behaviour of non-compliant operators, particularly when the revenue or perceived value of continuing the non-compliance is much higher than the potential fine. Additionally, the ticketing process requires consistent enforcement resources to monitor compliant operators.

The priority level of the call for service and resourcing at the time of the alleged offence are considerations for response times. There are high demands on police resources, and it can be reasonably assumed that most nuisance calls may not be dispatched within hours of the complaint. In those circumstances, charges could not be laid as the offence is not occurring at the time of police attendance.

Current enforcement techniques from CBES officers such as warning letters, by-law violation orders, and Common Offense Notices are cost and time intensive; when the remedy of non-compliance can be imposed through a condition of the operators' licence to run the business. These methods can be considered more effective in the case of repetitive non-compliance.

Enforcement options and tools available to the LGA under the Act are significant and the processes involved provide agility for site specific situations. For example, conditions may be placed on a specific licensee given the circumstances of a specific issue versus a blanket prohibition across the entire city under new or amended by-laws.

One can reasonably assume that issues related to loud noise (music) from patios are highly correlated to that patio being licensed. Amplified music is part of the operation of the licensed premises and can vary in and out of compliance on a daily and hourly basis.

A licensing structure offers the opportunity to manage repeat non-compliance in a more straight forward manner, by establishing an escalating series of consequences, leading up to suspension or even potential revocation of a license.

Option 2 – Amend the Zoning By-law and/or Approval Process

All licensed patios require a development permit from Zoning and Permits as well as occupancy permits to be established. There are two Zoning by-laws that apply: the Winnipeg Zoning By-law No. 200/2006 and the Downtown Winnipeg Zoning By-law No. 100/2004. All licensed patios exceeding 100 square feet in size (outside of the downtown) require Conditional Use approval by way of an advertised public hearing through the Board of Adjustment. During this approval process, conditions can be placed on those orders (Development Conditional Use (DCU) Orders).

If the licensed patio is in the downtown, the Downtown Zoning By-law applies and DCU's apply to patios that are over 1000 square feet in the Character Sector only; the remaining part of the downtown is exempt from this requirement and the licensed patio use is permitted without limitations.

Typical "conditions" placed on DCU's often include restrictions on amplified music and hours of service.

Analysis:

An amendment to the Zoning By-laws or approval process could include blanket condition restrictions on music and possible closing times at those patios. Amendments to one or both Zoning By-laws require formal approval at Council and include advertising for the public hearing, potential public consultation and stakeholder input.

However, there are several drawbacks to this option. Primarily, that there would be no impact to existing licensed patio operations as they have been established legally through previous conditional use approvals. It should be noted that the impetus for this report is that there are some existing operators causing concerns for nearby residents and this approach would not address those situations.

A second drawback is that land use processes are intended to focus on the actual use and do not inherently have the agility to be an effective tool in controlling (activity) operational non-compliance issues that can occur regularly, such as loud noise / disturbances to the adjacent context. And since rights under zoning run with the land, a patio approval issued for a French café, as an example, would continue to be in place without a new application if the premises converted into a livelier bar and grill with a patio.

In addition, zoning by-law enforcement officers, since their focus is on land-use versus operational activity generally do not work evenings and weekends, when most if not all compliance issues occur. A significant shift in work time and resources would need to be made to address a handful of concerns.

Option 3 – Amend Part 5 of the NLB

Currently the activity of playing loud music anywhere at any time is investigated as a "Noise Nuisance" and enforced under Section 67 of the NLB, which allows for considerations to be made on a situational basis.

Section 69 of the NLB prohibits certain activities at specific times within 150 Meters of a residential property. This section currently regulates activities related to the use or operation of mechanical tools, machines, and engines or motors.

Should an amendment to the NLB be made, this section would be amended so that it prohibits the activity of any property owner or establishment operator to allow outdoor patio music (amplified) to emanate from outdoor patios at restaurants, drinking establishments, micro-brewery, distillery or winery, or any commercial enterprises between the hours of 11:00 p.m. and 8:00 a.m.

Enforcement of this by-law is shared between Winnipeg Police Service and Community By-law Enforcement Services which includes attending at the time of the offense to determine if a violation has occurred and issuing a Penalty Notice as required.

Analysis:

Currently all nuisance noise complaints are investigated by Winnipeg Police Officers (people related) and CBES Officers (mechanical and air moving devices) under the existing by-laws. This specific amendment option has a few implications ranging from enforcement to expected results for the amendment itself.

Enforcement of the NLB can be handled by Police Officers but is subject to priority screening which affects the ability for an officer to attend to a complaint while the possible violation is in progress. CBES Officers could attend but resourcing considerations must be made in relation to hours of work, training, and potential health and safety factors that can exist when liquor consumption is involved.

A major drawback to this option is that it would affect one law abiding business owner's ability to provide a certain level of table service, regardless of their location and neighbourhood, but will not necessarily stop another business owner from treating any subsequent fines or penalties as a cost of doing business and choose to continue violating the NLB, as the operator can only be charged once per day. From the complainants' point of view, in this circumstance it would give the appearance that the City has not responded to their complaint even though the officers have already attended and dealt with the matter.

Summary

Based on the Public Service's review of the mechanisms to address nuisance noise, we have determined that there are sufficient measures in place and that no changes to City by-laws are required. To provide greater responses to the public, scripting will be provided to 311 operators so that concerns with excessive noise on licensed patios can also be referred to The Liquor and Gaming Authority of Manitoba.
