Additional Information	Voluntary Bike Registration: The Vancouver Police Foundation and the City of Vancouver Greenest City initiative have teamed up with Project 529 to spearhead a BC bike registration and recovery program. Information on the "Log it, Lock it or Lose it" campaign can be viewed on their website, along with interesting stats and information (please see first link below). The City does not have its own bike registry; however, the City does promote 529 Garage. Information, stats and links can be found on the City's website (please see link below).	The City of Surrey does not have a mandatory bike registry; however, the City does have a web page dedicated to bike safety & security, including theft prevention (please see link). It encourages bike owners to take a picture and record important information as proof of purchase.	The City of Calgary does have a link to cycling in Calgary which offers comprehensive information; however, they do not enforce mandatory bike registration. Point of Interest: Calgary is beginning phase two of a bike share pilot program in June 2019.	The City of Edmonton does not have a bike registry but they do encourage the use of Project 529 Garage (please see media link).

The City of Saskatoon webpage has a link to the Police Service's webpage where citizens can voluntarily register their bikes. Saskatoon Police Services currently runs a campaign called #GetMyBikeBack. They have enlisted several bike retailers to promote and support the bike registry upon purchase of a bike.	The City of Regina ended a bike licensing program in 2015 (please see media link).	*Recommend a link on the city's Pedestrians & Cycling web page. Bike registration appeared in licensing but was tricky to find at first.
