Comments in writing: I am in support of the public service recommendation that the funding for the Winnipeg Police Service remain under the current Multi-Year Balanced Budget Policy, Model #1 Status Quo. All of the other models presented simply give police more money without any accountability. Over and above the scope of this work the public service should be directed to do a detailed review of police expenditures to find operating savings as their appears to be little to no control from council over the police budget and expenditures. I am in support of what Councillor Mayes suggested to the media recently, being the Province of Manitoba should reconsider the governance structure of police by dissolving the police board or by finding a way for councillors to have greater control over police expenditures. It would be beneficial for the Public Service to benchmark other municipalities across North America to explore the types of governance structure that offer effective policing in an affordable manner. We need a new approach to policing in Winnipeg.
