They get noise complaints. They see millions in PE speeding tickets. They want to see millions of $ raised with auto sound tickets.

I can also see why those who think this through, like the good folks at the Legislature, are not on board. As was explained last week, it is not prudent to pester a Minister too often. The tech for ISCs is far more advanced than that for automated noise enforcement. Other cities may reap profit from sound PE, but only when they ignore basic justice. Too often, the nearest vehicle is not the source of the measured sound. An empty dump truck can be very loud when it goes through a pothole. A pair of sharp ears, on the head of an enforcement official, can focus on the source. An officer stopping the vehicle can weed out mistaken diagnoses. The machine cannot.
