Comments in writing: Did anyone see the irony in following the "plain language" topic with the spin doc promo item? One is focused on easy to understand messaging. The other promotes the promotion of city hall narratives, with little regard for the reader's ability to understand what is being asked. If the author's purpose is get votes in favor, then explaining all aspects of the topic is not job-1. When you know that most folks do not like a narrative, asking "do you love this or do you like it a lot" and allowing only those 2 choices will deliver a lot of positive data.
