Comments in writing: I try to follow what city hall and local media tell us. I do not recall hearing any dissent to the "spend your way out of the deficit" narrative.

Trying to lift yourself off the ground, by pulling up on your boots, is seldom successful. Ottawa proved that spending cannot mitigate the economic damage done since 2020 by their ill-thought-out pandemic rules.

There are 2 major reason for caution. 1. you are nearly out of (our) money. 2. Spending on city amenities cannot offset the biggest reasons that city resident behavior changed in 2020.
