While this item fails to explain the problem in detail, those who follow current events know that the city is nearly out of spending money, and that recent budgets have grabbed the profits from water and waste fees and even enforcement of laws and bylaws.

Those who approved that grabbing should be held to account, as the cliché goes. We hear that we will need billions to pay for the biggest wastewater project ever. The wastewater fees, that we were told would pay for that project, have all been spent on bike paths and art works. If this grabbing is what the Notice suggests be reviewed, then it should also be ended.

I consent to being contacted to participate in potential public engagement related to this matter.
