I am against waiting another 60 days. These changes should happen now. A learned 3rd party was paid to review what council does. They recognized that current rules make it too easy to ignore public comment. I face this regularly. Instead of taking the good advice of this consultant company, and fixing the problem, city hall has moved to make it far worse. New rules forbid comment if any of a list of conditions apply. More than 3 years ago, MNP said that delegations should be an integral part of your decision-making. Is there a reason that Council has ignored the MNP report, beyond the obvious reason: how easy current rules make it to ignore good advice?
