HISTORY/DISCUSSION

The Group of Seven (G7) is made up of seven member countries, including Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, the United Kingdom, and the United States, and the European Union. The members meet each year at a summit that is hosted and organized by the country that has assumed the presidency. Canada currently holds the presidency of the G7, and will host the 2025 G7 Leaders' Summit from June 15 to 17, 2025, in Kananaskis, Alberta, with Calgary serving as staging area for the event.

The Calgary Police Service (CPS) is supporting the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) in advancing their mission for the Summit, which is ensuring the protection of the general public and heads of state participating in the 2025 G7 Leaders' Summit.

CPS has requested assistance from its law enforcement partners to ensure appropriate policing resources are available to maintain public safety during the Summit. The WPS is committed to providing resources to assist CPS in meeting its policing responsibilities from June 14 to 17. The WPS has considered to the day-to-day operations of the WPS during this deployment, and will ensure contingency plans are in place to ensure that the citizens of Winnipeg are not impacted.

The Government of Canada is providing funding to the CPS to cover costs of policing the event. In turn, the CPS will reimburse the WPS for all costs associated with the deployment of WPS resources, including travel, per diems, salaries and overtime.

The responsibilities and obligations of the CPS and WPS, including financial arrangements, will be formalized in a Contract for Policing Services.

As the RCMP and CPS continue to plan for the event, additional requests for WPS resources may be considered. The Edmonton Police Service and the Vancouver Police Department have also been engaged by CPS to provide services for the Summit.
